Childcare: The Richardson Family

“I chose MCUM for Jagger for a number of reasons. I went to MCUM when I was a child as well. I have very fond memories from my experience there, and I am glad I got such a great start to life. I am so grateful they have a sliding scale for their fees because it makes it affordable for single parents like myself, while at the same time I know that my son is getting quality care and a quality start to his education there. Jagger has made such wonderful friends at MCUM, and I have been able to make connections to other parents and faculty as well. The staff is so helpful, not just when it comes to Jagger, but also for having resources available to the community and families.

Since Jagger has been enrolled in MCUM’s childcare program, he has improved his overall social skills. He has been able to efficiently use his words to communicate with those around him. His number recognition has increased greatly, and it’s so great to see his writing skills improve already. While I was working and going to school, I knew that he was in a great place, which made it easier for me to concentrate on my studies and work.

Jagger has had some great experiences at MCUM. We have both made friends because of it. We thoroughly enjoy the lunches they arrange, like the Thanksgiving meal, the programs that they put together and all the parties they have.

Thank you MCUM and all the staff.”

- Aimee Richardson

Aimee and her son Jagger love to spend time together outdoors fishing and playing.

Food insecurity describes any household that struggles with having enough food to eat. It also describes nearly half of Monroe County residents. The MCUM Hunger Games is a two-month community challenge to raise awareness and support for MCUM’s hunger-fighting services.

Will you volunteer as tribute to help take the odds out of hunger for 611 people?

During March and April, help MCUM raise $30,000 and collect 11,000 pounds of food to support its Self Sufficiency Center and client choice pantry. Financial donations will be proportionately-matched.

Are you part of a group, team or business? Here’s how you can get involved!

Step 1: Sign up.

Select a contact person for your District and sign up online at www.mcum.org/hungergames

Meet MCUM’s Newest Team Member!

Michaela is MCUM’s Cox Civic Scholar. Her goal is to get more student groups like Greek organizations, student clubs, and dorms involved at MCUM. She is a freshman at Indiana University and loves her major in elementary and exceptional needs education. She was born and raised in Muncie, Indiana and has two siblings who she loves to pieces - Nathaniel, 17 and Olivia, 8. Her family has three dogs, but since they are so far away, she spends a lot of time at the puppy stores around Bloomington. Her favorite things to do in Bloomington include being on the morale committee of the Indiana University Dance Marathon and trying out local foods and activities. Michaela wants to work with students with special needs after she graduates. She has loved every minute of working at MCUM so far. “MCUM is so unique, and I love our mission and everyone here!” she said.

Michaela is in charge of student involvement at MCUM, but eager to get involved in as many other ways as she can.
